Farm Machinery

Agricultural machines are used to till soil and to plant, cultivate, and harvest crops.

Modern machinery is extensively used in Western Europe, Australia, the United States, the Russian Federation and Canada.

Modern large agricultural implements, adapted to large-scale applied methods, are usually powered by diesel or petrol fuelled internal combustion engines. The most important implement of modern agriculture is the tractor. It provides locomotion for many other implements and can furnish power, via its power shaft (приводной вал), for the operation of machines drawn behind the tractor. The power shaft of tractors can also be set up to drive belts that operate equipment such as feed grinders, pumps, and electric power generators. Small implements, such as portable irrigators, may be powered by individual motors.

Many types of implements have been developed for the activities involved in growing crops. These activities include breaking ground, planting, weeding, fertilizing and combating pests.

Ground is broken by ploughs. Harrows are used to smooth the ploughed land. The disc harrow, which has curved, sharp-edged steel discs (стальные диски, заточенные по краям), is used mainly to cut up crop residues before ploughing. Specialized implements called planters are necessary for sowing crops that are planted in rows.

Manure is distributed most efficiently by a manure spreader.
